

FIFTH-GRADERS AT BRETTON WOODS GET AN IDEA OF WHAT TO EXPECT IN MIDDLE SCHOOL

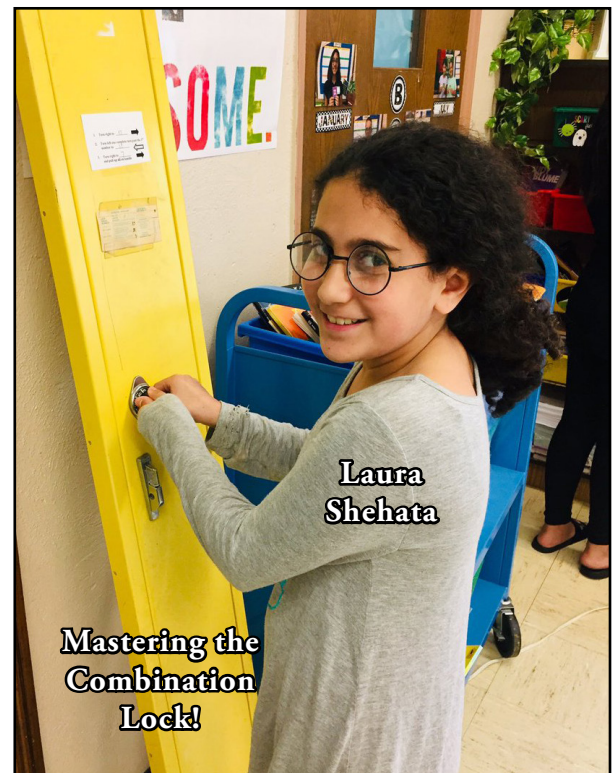

The fifth-grade class of Karen Karpowicz recently had a visit from school guidance counselor, Toby Poveromo. Mr. Poveromo visited their class to give a brief orientation to the students on what to expect in Middle School.

Mr. Poveromo does these visits each year. He shows the students the building map, bell schedule and report cards. He also talks to them about clubs and answers questions about lockers, etc. He even brings a locker door with him with a combo lock so that students can practice opening it.

At the end of the orientation, Mr. Poveromo plays a game with them called "Who Wants to be a Middle School Millionaire?" which is a fun review of the information he has presented. Evan Lombardi was the winner!

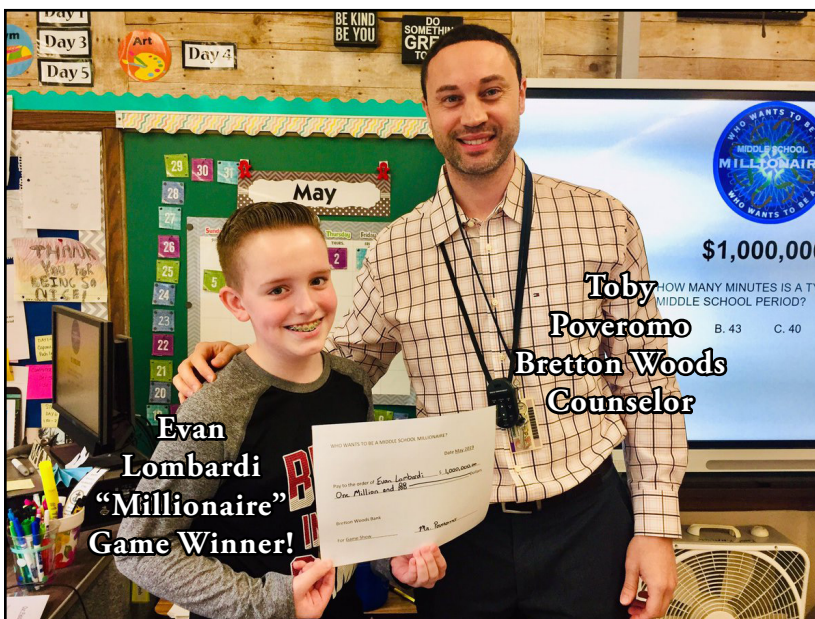

Ms. Karpowicz said, "This visit helps the students prepare questions for their trip to the Middle School on May 20th."

We know these students, and all of our fifth-graders will be well-prepared when they walk through the doors of the Middle School in September!
